

Getting Ahead – FAST – with Skills Centers

At the age of 24, when many traditional college students are just a year or two into a career, Amy Meeks is already a fully-qualified Journeyman Electrician!

Amy spent her senior year in the Tri-Tech Skills Center Diesel Technology program, and with that training and an excellent work ethic, she went to work for the McCurley Chevrolet dealership straight out of high school.

One year later, Amy began a five-year Electrical apprenticeship program sponsored by Kennewick Local 112. Today, fully-qualified at a relatively young age, Amy serves as a guest speaker at the Annual Tri-Cities Construction Career day, where she is particularly persuasive in helping convince students that they, too, can have a great future...if they're willing to work for it!

WASHINGTON STATE SKILLS CENTERS

